"Every year, thousands of pet wolf-dogs are surrendered because people purchase these animals they are not prepared to care for," said Jennifer Ackley, Executive Director of Wolf PAWS. "Moonbeam, Eko, Dakota and the rest of the pack invite you to WolfStock. We know you'll fall in love with these beautiful animals who are our ambassadors for educating the public about wolf-dogs and why we discourage having them as pets."

About Wolf PAWS: Wolf PAWS "Positive Awareness Wolf-dog Sanctuary" was formed in 2013 in the foothills of the Great Smoky Mountains of East Tennessee for the purpose of rescuing abandoned, neglected and abused wolf-dogs, providing a permanent sanctuary for them, providing an environment where these animals can be studied by individuals and educational institutions to further understand the wolf-dog, and educating the public about responsible and humane care of wolf-dogs as pet animals, in an attempt to reduce the number of wolf-dogs being euthanized.

Wolf PAWS is a 501(c)(3) organization. All contributions to Wolf PAWS are tax-deductible. For more information or to donate online, please visit www.wolfpaws.org.
